

"I was amazed at the amount of information presented, put together in a way I could process and remember. This class was vital for me to understand all aspects of advocacy, how my organization fits in and just how big an impact advocacy can have on getting people fed."

Mark Lynch, participant in 101 course and advocate for the hungry

Ending Hunger 101: Changing the Systems

Hunger is increasing dramatically in the US and around the world. Big picture actions are needed. You are invited to learn more by attending Ending Hunger 101: Change the Systems on Sat Jan 13th. Explore the systemic issues that contribute to food insecurity, and learn what you can do to change them.

When and Where

Saturday January 13, 10:00 to 11:30 a.m.
Friedens United Church of Christ
8300 S Meridian St
Indianapolis, IN 46217

Facilitators

Dr. David Miner, past Board Chair, Bread for the World and Indy Hunger Network
Rev Grace Kozak, Indiana Organizer, Bread for the World

Class Content

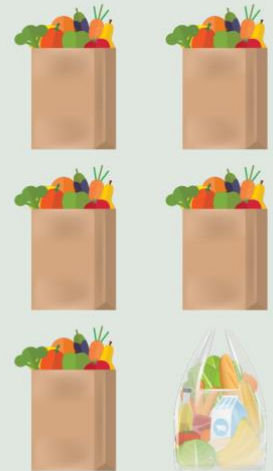

- Latest news on hunger at home and abroad - where are we on ending hunger?
- Indiana stories that illustrate the central role of systems in hunger
- How we can change the systems, and striking results of actions by Hoosier advocates
- Both new persons and experienced Bread for the World leaders have found value in the class.
- The class offers plenty of time for questions and discussion.

Register at:

Ending Hunger 101

Questions? Contact Grace Kozak, 517-243-9690, Grace@Bread.org Dave Miner, 317-691-7438 dminer145@aol.com

In Indiana,
5 of every 6 meals
for the hungry come from federal programs like
SNAP, WIC, &
School Lunches.

1 meal comes from Churches & Charities.

